Volltext	In the event of a ban on activity or quarantine, you as a self-employed person are entitled not only to compensation for loss of earnings but also to reimbursement of ongoing uncovered operating expenses, such as rents or loans. This only applies in the event of a threat to existence and only to operating costs that cannot be avoided. You also need to keep operating costs as low as possible. The refund will be made to a reasonable extent. This is a so-called "optional performance". This means that the authority has leeway to assess whether a claim exists and how high it is.
