Teaser	If you would like to carry out an educational or similar research project in a Hessian school, including as part of a qualification thesis, you must first obtain approval from the Hessian Ministry of Education and Cultural Affairs.
Volltext	Prior approval from the Hessian Ministry of Education and Cultural Affairs is required to carry out a scientific study in Hessian schools. This regulation applies to scientific research projects regardless of the subject area and the methods and instruments used. This includes questionnaires, competence tests, qualitative interviews, lesson observations and the like. Although approval by the Ministry of Education and Cultural Affairs is a prerequisite for implementation, it does not replace the approval of the individual school for implementation. The school conference must always be consulted on the research project before the school management agrees to participate. The consultation of the school conference can take place independently of the application procedure in accordance with § 84 of the Hessian School Act. The approval procedure pays particular attention to compliance with data protection regulations, as surveys and similar data collections in schools generally involve the collection of personal or personally identifiable data. It is also checked whether the methods and content of the survey concern sensitive issues and whether there is a risk that the peace at school or the educational mission of the schools will be impaired.
