The amount of compensation depends on your loss of earnings.

The following applies to employees:

You will receive the compensation directly from your employer in the amount of your previous net salary. Short-time work allowance is also taken into account.

Subsidies from your employer will be deducted from the calculation.

If you are entitled to continued payment of wages or wage replacement benefits during quarantine, you will not receive any compensation. Continued payment of remuneration or wage replacement benefits are, for example:

- Continued payment of remuneration in the event of incapacity for work
- Continued payment of remuneration during leave
- Eligibility for unemployment benefits
- Entitlement to short-time allowance
- Entitlement under the Vocational Training Act (trainees)

The following applies to employers:

You must pay compensation to your employees in advance. You can have the amounts paid reimbursed by the State Administration Office .

You can also be reimbursed for contributions to
