Sachverhalt

According to the Infection Protection Act (IfSG), there is a legal ban on activities for

- Persons who come into contact with foodstuffs when producing, treating or placing them on the market, or who work in kitchens of restaurants and communal catering facilities, if they suffer from certain infectious diseases (e.g. salmonellosis), infected wounds or similar, or are excretors; Persons employed in communal facilities for children and adolescents, if they suffer from certain infectious diseases or are excretors;
- Persons employed in community facilities for children and adolescents who are suffering from certain infectious diseases or are excretors.

In addition, the health authorities are entitled to prohibit sick persons, persons suspected of having the disease, persons suspected of being infected and excretors from certain occupational activities, insofar as this is necessary to prevent the spread of infectious diseases.

How much compensation is paid?

- 1. up to 6th week: amount of loss of earnings
- from the 7th week: 67% of the loss of earnings, for a full month a maximum amount of EUR 2,016

Verfahrensablauf

Employee

If you are an employee, your employer will pay you for the loss of earnings in the event of a ban on activities in accordance with the Infection Protection Act for the first six weeks. From the seventh week onwards, you must submit an informal application to the competent body in addition to your employer's application.

Modul

Sachverhalt

Employer

Upon application, the competent body will reimburse you for the compensation paid to its employees to whom compensation is payable under section 56(1) (loss of earnings and pension contributions).

Note: Pursuant to section 57, paragraph 1, sentence 3 of the Infection Protection Act, the Land shall bear the employer's and employee's contributions to the statutory pension insurance scheme alone. The Saxony Regional Directorate pays the contributions with the reimbursement of the employer's expenses. Therefore, no deduction of the employer's contribution to the statutory pension insurance is made from the gross earnings of the employee.

Self-employed

If you are self-employed, apply directly to the Saxony Regional Office for compensation for loss of earnings and social security benefits (old-age provision, health and long-term care insurance).

Written application

You submit the application for compensation/reimbursement on the prescribed form to the Saxony Regional Directorate. You will also receive information there on specific questions regarding the application.

- Complete the application form and compile the supporting documents.
- Submit the application documents in full to the competent office.

Examination and payment

- Your application will be reviewed immediately and any missing documents will be requested.
- You will receive a written decision on the approval /
