If you discharge wastewater (sewage and rainwater) into a surface water body or into groundwater, you must pay a wastewater fee. The wastewater fee is generally based on the harmfulness of the wastewater, which is determined according to individual criteria.

Are you building or expanding wastewater treatment plants?

The expenses incurred by you can be offset against the waste water levy you paid for the discharges concerned in the previous three calendar years.
Prerequisite: The plant operation can be expected to

- a 20 percent reduction in the load of a fee-relevant parameter in the waste water stream to be treated
- a reduction in the total pollutant load

This also applies to the construction of so-called influent plants, provided that an overall reduction in
