| Teaser                           | You must apply for a certificate of separate ownershipif a separate property is to be created or a permanentresidential right is to be asserted.   |
| Volltext                         | If you establish separate ownership of an apartment orof rooms not used for residential purposes (e.g.commercial premises) or of a parking space, you willneed a certificate of separate ownership. You will alsoneed this if you wish to assert the right to permanentlyoccupy a specific apartment in the building (permanentright of residence).The certificate of segregation proves that• an apartment is sufficiently structurally separatedfrom other apartments or rooms or• rooms not used for residential purposes (partialownership) are closed off from other rooms.     |
