Volltext	Marriage and family are under the special protection of the Basic Law. For this reason, German nationals and foreign nationals residing in Germany with a settlement permit, an EU permanent residence permit, a residence permit, an EU Blue Card, an ICT Card or a Mobile ICT Card (see under "Related topics") can have their foreign spouse/partner and minor children join them under certain conditions, allow their foreign spouse/partner and underage children to join them under certain conditions. The group of unaccompanied refugee minors is a special case. They can also have their parents join them until they reach the age of 18. The individual regulations on the reunification of foreign family members, which also apply to the reunification of life partners, are set out in great detail in the Residence Act. The possibilities and requirements for family reunification depend on the type of residence permit and the underlying purpose of the stay of the family member already living in Germany. Before foreign spouses/life partners or underage children can travel to Germany, they require a visa for family reunification, which they can apply for at the German diplomatic mission in their home country (see "National visa; issue and extension" under "Related topics"). Whether there are exceptions to the visa requirement - for example for certain countries of origin - can be found in the EU Visa Regulation, among other things. In case of doubt, please contact the German embassy in your country of origin or the immigration authority in your place of residence.

Voraussetzungen

What all cases of family reunification have in common is that the spouse/partner and underage children must enter the country to establish and maintain the family relationship or civil partnership.

In principle, the following additional requirements must be met for family reunification: The family member for whom family reunification is taking place must be in possession of a residence permit, Sufficient living space must be available,

- the means of subsistence must be ensured,
- Both spouses must be of legal age
- the spouse joining the family must be able to communicate easily in German.

This is intended to encourage the person concerned to acquire a basic knowledge of German before entering the country and thus facilitate their integration in Germany. Exceptions to the requirement for proof of language skills apply, for example, if it is not possible or reasonable for the spouse to make efforts to acquire a basic knowledge of German before entering the country due to special circumstances of the individual case, in the case of spouses of business people who will only be working and living in Germany temporarily, or in the case of persons with a university degree. With regard to the living space requirement, there is an exception for reunification with holders of an EU Blue Card, other skilled workers, certain scientists, self-employed persons and some other groups of people. In the case of reunification with holders of an EU Blue Card, proof of livelihood is not required under certain conditions. Family members other than spouses/partners and underage children, such as grandparents, parents-in-law, siblings, uncles, aunts and grandchildren, may only be allowed to join family members in cases of exceptional hardship. There are high requirements for the existence of a case of exceptional hardship. No benefits are provided for such foreign family members of Germans. Exceptions apply to the parents of holders of an EU

Blue Card, other skilled workers, certain scientists, self-employed persons and some other groups of people; in these cases, the parents may also be allowed to join them if their livelihood is secure. This also includes the reunification of parents-in-law, provided the spouse resides or will reside permanently in Germany. Family reunification is excluded in the following cases, among others:

- to foreigners who are in Germany as asylum seekers and whose asylum procedure has not yet been completed,
- to foreigners who are obliged to leave Germany, including those whose deportation has been temporarily suspended (e.g. due to inability to travel, lack of passport or interrupted or missing transport connections), i.e. who are only staying in Germany on a tolerated basis,
- to foreigners who have only been granted a residence permit for a temporary stay for urgent humanitarian or personal reasons or because significant public interests require their continued temporary presence.

Kosten

- Issuing the residence permit: 100 euros
- Extension for a further stay of up to three months: 96 euros
- Extension for a further stay of more than three months: 93 euros
