Teaser	Anyone wishing to open a restaurant for a short period of time (e.g. as part of a public festival) requires a temporary permit.
Volltext	Do you intend to open a restaurant (e.g. food truck, beer tent) at short notice during a special event (e.g. public festival, music event)? A temporary restaurant license (permit) allows this under simplified conditions. However, the special reason must not lie solely in the gastronomic activity itself. This permit is only necessary if you are operating a restaurant that requires a permit. You do not need the permit if you only serve • non-alcoholic drinks, • free samples, • prepared food or • in connection with an accommodation establishment, serve drinks and prepared food to house guests. to house guests. Permission can only be granted for a specific location. For example, the place where your permitted beer tent may be located is specified in the permit. Irrespective of the permission to operate a restaurant, you will generally require a permit to set up a tent/van and similar. If the event takes place indoors, building regulations may need to be observed.
