Volltext	You must deregister with the registration office if you • move abroad or • give up one of your residences (e.g. a secondary residence) without moving into a new residence at the same time. If you give up your secondary residence without moving into a new residence at the same time, you must notify the registration office responsible for your main residence. You do not have to deregister if you move within Germany. It is sufficient to register with your new municipality. The new municipality will inform the former municipality that you have moved.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	The registration office may request further documents from you. These are usually: • Identity card or passport • Identity cards of family members: For children who do not have a child passport, bring the birth certificate.
