Within the framework of the protection of children and young people, measures are offered to protect them from danger.

Volltext

The General Social Service (ASD for short; sometimes also referred to as Kommunaler Sozialdienst, KSD for short, or as Fachdienst) sees itself as a holistic basic service, particularly for measures and services relating to youth welfare at the municipal level.

In some municipalities, the General Social Service can also be the point of contact for services and questions relating to social assistance or social security, assistance for the elderly or disabled. In many cases, it is the first point of contact for citizens seeking advice on social issues - across target groups and/or offices.

The scope of tasks and the organization of the General Social Service varies considerably in the individual municipalities. Within the ASD/ KSD, certain tasks can also be organized as special services.

The task profile of an ASD usually includes:
