| Teaser                   | If you have a duplex or secondary residence in additionto your primary residence, then you may be requiredto pay a duplex tax.   |
| Volltext                 | The cities and municipalities in Thuringia can decide ontheir own authority and legal as well as municipalfinancial policy responsibility whether and to whatextent they want to levy second home tax. There is noobligation to levy the tax on second homes. The tax islevied on the occupancy of an additional dwelling(second or secondary dwelling) in addition to a maindwelling. |
|                          | As a rule, this applies to all persons who have movedinto an apartment in the town in question and haveregistered it as a secondary residence. Whether theapartment is rented or occupied by the owner himselfis irrelevant, as is the question of whether the mainapartment is located in the same place.   |
|                          | The basis for assessment is usually the annual rentalexpenditure, or in the case of owner-occupiedapartments, the local comparative rent (rent index).Due to municipal autonomy, no uniform regulationsapply.  |
|                          | Exceptions: Married persons who are not permanently separated and who maintain a secondary residence for professional reasons are generally exempt from the secondary residence tax.   |
