Teaser	Do you want to operate a system that does not require a permit and uses solvents above the threshold values in Annex I of the 31st BImSchV? Then you must notify the responsible immission control authority in advance of any significant changes.
Volltext	If you operate a system that does not require a permit with a solvent consumption above the threshold values according to Annex I of the 31st BImSchV, you must notify the responsible immission control authority in advance of any significant changes. The obligation to notify applies to all installations that do not require a permit and are operated with a solvent consumption above the threshold values according to Annex I of the 31st BImSchV. A significant change is any:

Modul
Sachverhalt

- modification which, according to the assessment of the competent authority, may have a significant negative impact on human health or the environment
- A change in nominal capacity which, in the case of installations of numbers 1.1, 1.3, 9.2 or 11.1 of Annex I with a solvent consumption of 25 t/a or less, points 4.1 to 4.5, 8.1, 9.1, 10.1, 10.2, 12.1 or 14.1 of Annex I with a solvent consumption of 15 t/a or less, points 2.1, 5.1, 7.2, 13.1 or 15.1 of Annex I with a solvent consumption of 10 t/a or less, numbers 16.1 to 16.4 of Annex I with a solvent consumption of 500 t/a or less leads to an increase in emissions of volatile organic compounds of more than 25 percent.

Change in rated capacity that leads to an increase in emissions of volatile organic compounds of more than 10 percent.

Erforderliche Unterlagen Complete display with the relevant data for the system.

Voraussetzungen You are planning a significant change to a system operated by you with a solvent consumption above the threshold values according to Annex I of the 31st BImSchV.

Kosten There are no costs.

Verfahrensablauf

- You submit your notification with the relevant data for the installation to the authority responsible for you
- The competent authority checks your notification
- If necessary, the competent authority will request further documents from you

Bearbeitungsdauer There is no processing deadline.

Frist You must submit the notification before making the significant change to the system.
