Teaser	The Youth Employment Protection Act generally prohibits the employment of children. An exception is the participation of children in special events such as theatre performances, music performances, etc. Employers can apply for this exemption at the Labour Inspectorate.
Volltext	For the participation of children and young people of full-time school age (hereinafter: children) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• at theatrical performances, musical performances, promotional events,</li> <li>• for recordings on radio and television, and</li> <li>• for film and photo shoots</li> </ul> As an employer, you can apply for an exemption from the prohibition of child labour. Employers are all those who employ a child themselves or through a responsible person, for example a theatre, a business or a company (for example, a film production company) or an association (for example, a choral association in the regular opera and concert business). A permit is required for the employment of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Children (from 0 to 14 years of age)</li> <li>• Young people of full-time school age (from 15 to 17 years of age)</li> </ul> For young people who are still subject to full-time compulsory education, the rules applicable to children apply. As a rule, a permit is granted for a maximum of 30 days per calendar year and child. Employment days from multiple employers are added together. Samples count towards working time and are included in the employment time. After the end of employment, the child must be granted the required 14 hours of free time between two activities. Attendance at school before the end of this period is not affected by this restriction. A licence is excluded for the participation of children in cabarets, dance halls and similar establishments as well as at amusement parks, fairs, fairs and similar events, shows or performances. An exception for the employment of a child under 3 years of age cannot be granted. Employers are responsible for ensuring that the necessary precautions and measures are taken to protect the respective child against risks to life and health as well as to avoid adverse physical and mental development before the start of employment at the latest. In doing so, it is necessary to take into account all the circumstances that play a role in the child's employment. Furthermore, the employer must ensure the care and supervision of the child. The necessary measures therefore include careful selection, appointment, information and supervision of the supervisor, even if the employers have delegated these tasks.

Sachverhalt

Erforderliche Unterlagen

- Declaration of consent (written consent of the legal guardians)
- medical certificate (not older than 3 months)
- Certificate from the school that there is no risk of poor school performance
- A statement from the Youth Welfare Office can optionally be submitted with the application. Otherwise, this will be obtained by the authority processing the application.

Voraussetzungen

A child's activity must be a creative contribution, for example as a performer, musician, supporting character or person without a speaking role (extra), extra, singer, model. Exceptions for creative participation can be granted:

- for theatrical performances for children over 6 years of age up to 4 hours a day from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
- for musical performances and other performances, advertising events as well as recordings on radio (radio and television), on sound and image carriers as well as
