Teaser	If you want to know the value of your property, you can apply for a market value appraisal from a land value appraisal committee.
Volltext	The market value of a property reflects the price that could be achieved in the ordinary course of business on a specific date. The main value-determining features are taken into account, such as the location or size of a plot of land, years of construction of buildings, their state of maintenance, quality of fixtures and fittings, etc. However, circumstances that are unusual for the real estate market or do not reflect it neutrally are not taken into account when determining the market value. The market value can also refer to rights to properties, such as rights of way. The definition of market value and the requirements for determining it are set out in the German Building Code.

A market value appraisal by the expert committees verifies the market value in accordance with the Building Code in an interest-neutral manner and with official quality. The contents of an appraisal regularly include a comprehensive description of the property to be valued (value-influencing features) and the method of determination, an analysis of comparable purchase cases (from the official purchase price collection of the expert committees) as well as the justification of the market value determined in the specific case. Market value appraisals can be requested for developed and undeveloped properties and rights to properties.

The expert committees are responsible for certain regions in Lower Saxony as defined by the state; they are made up of chairmen and honorary members. The presiding members are members of the surveying and land registry administration. Honorary members are experts from the broad field of the real estate industry, e.g. from real estate industry, e.g. from the fields of architecture, civil engineering, agriculture, finance or estate agency.

An expert committee is always autonomous and independent. To support the completion of its tasks, each expert committee has an office, which is also located in the surveying and land registry administration.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

The documents required for a market value determination differ depending on the type of appraisal order. If necessary, the office will consult with you.

Voraussetzungen

According to Section 193 (1) of the Building Code, you can apply for a market value appraisal for developed and undeveloped land as well as rights to land if you

- Owner,
- a person with equivalent rights to the owner,

Kosten

Fees are charged for the preparation of market value appraisals. These are based in particular on the market value determined in the report. Depending on the individual case, necessary expenses may also be added.

The amount of the fees is regulated in the current version of the schedule of fees for the expert committees and the Higher Expert Committee(GOGut).

Verfahrensablauf

You can submit an application to the relevant office of the expert committee for the preparation of a market value appraisal of developed and undeveloped land as well as rights to land.

- After receipt of the order, the office will first check whether you are eligible to apply.
- If necessary, the office will contact you as part of the preparation of the expert opinion in order to obtain the necessary documents and/or to arrange an appointment for the preparatory findings of fact on the property and in the building.
- At the same time, the office of the expert committee will carry out investigations into the facts of the property with other authorities and bodies.
- The presiding member of the expert committee determines the composition of the expert committee for this expert opinion.
- As a rule, an on-site inspection of the property is carried out by the expert committee, regardless of any preparatory local investigations by the office that have already been carried out. The office will arrange the necessary dates with you or the owner of the property.
- Further investigations may be necessary after that.
- The market value appraisal is discussed in the
