Teaser	All persons entitled to vote in the country can vote for the municipal election of their district council or their city council either by postal vote or on election day in a polling station.
Volltext	In the municipal elections, the citizens entitled to vote elect the members for the representations in their respective district-free cities or districts. These are in detail: the city councils of the four district-free cities or the district councils of the 14 districts. The number of members in these representations depends on the number of inhabitants of the district. Every citizen entitled to vote is entered in the electoral roll of his constituency and receives a voter notification. With this and the identity document, he casts his vote at the polling station on election day. Voting can also be done by postal ballot. It must be requested in writing (e.B. back of the election notification), electronically or by fax. A telephone application is not possible. After 6 p.m. on election day, the votes cast are counted and the composition of the representations is determined. The preliminary result, which was determined on election night, will be reviewed in the following days to determine the final result by the county election committee.
