Volltext	The Gesamtschule with gymnasialer Oberstufe comprises grades 7 to 13. It provides a basic, extended or in-depth general education and includes the course leading to the extended vocational training maturity (EWC), the course leading to the Fachoberschulreife (FOR) and the course leading to the general higher education entrance qualification. The comprehensive school bundles the objectives of the different educational programmes and types of school. It is an "integrated school". This is advantageous for those students whose further school or professional career only becomes apparent later. In addition to a solid basic education, the comprehensive school must therefore also provide in-depth education for all pupils who want to attend an upper secondary school. For this reason, in addition to classroom instruction in some subjects, performance-differentiated instruction is given at the comprehensive school in specialist performance courses at two levels (basic and extension courses). The number of advanced courses is slowly increasing. In grade 7 it is the subjects mathematics and first foreign language / English, at the latest from grade 9 the subjects German as well as chemistry and / or physics are added. The performance evaluation by grades is supplemented by points and thus enables a more differentiated evaluation of student performance.
