Teaser	Anyone wishing to collect, transport, trade and dispose of waste either needs a permit or, in the case of non-hazardous waste, must report this.
Volltext	Anyone who collects, transports, trades or brokers non-hazardous waste must notify the competent authority once before commencing their activities. Since June 1, 2014, this also applies to so-called commercial enterprises (e.g. craft businesses). The purpose of the notification requirement is to ensure that all companies that carry out one of the aforementioned waste-related activities are registered with the relevant competent authority. Anyone who collects, transports, trades or brokers hazardous waste generally requires a permit to do so. Anyone who already has a transport permit under waste legislation or a brokerage permit under previous waste legislation can continue to use this as long as the permit is still valid and no significant changes have occurred. Otherwise, a permit is required. The permit can be <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • nationwide or for one or more federal states, • indefinitely or for a specific period of time, • for all types of waste declared as hazardous or selected types of waste in accordance with the Waste Catalogue Ordinance (AVV).
