Hinweise	A complete building application is essential for the smooth running of the process. Only a person authorized to submit building plans (usually an architect or civil engineer) may submit an application. When applying for a building permit, you can choose between the simplified procedure and the concentrated procedure. With the simplified procedure, it is your responsibility to obtain any additional permits required from other authorities. You are responsible for ensuring compliance with all legal aspects of building regulations and ancillary building law. If you want to have everything from a single source, you should choose the concentrated procedure. If you have any doubts about the
