Teaser	If you, as an employer, would like to employ a skilled worker from a third country, you can apply for an accelerated skilled worker procedure.
Volltext	If you, as an employer, would like to hire a skilled worker from a non-EU country, you can use an accelerated procedure to facilitate the skilled worker's entry into Germany. The accelerated skilled worker procedure is aimed at foreign nationals who wish to come to Germany to: to undertake vocational training or further training in the company, to have their foreign professional qualifications recognized, to work as a skilled worker with vocational training, to work as a professional with academic training, to work as a highly qualified professional with academic training or to take up other skilled employment. Family members who enter the country within six months of the skilled worker can also benefit from this procedure. The accelerated procedure is voluntary. The skilled worker must authorize you to initiate the accelerated procedure. Even if you use the accelerated procedure, there is no guarantee that the skilled worker will receive a visa. The following points will be examined and processed in the accelerated procedure within a shorter period of time than usual: Residence

No visa application has yet been submitted in the country of origin (not even for family members). The specialist can finance his or her own living expenses and health insurance in Germany. The specialist has given you power of attorney for the procedure. The skilled worker is still in the country of origin or legally residing in another country outside the European Union (EU).

The competent authority will advise you on the procedural steps and the necessary involvement of other bodies. To carry out the procedure, you will conclude an agreement with the responsible authority. You pay the fee. If necessary, the competent authority will initiate the procedure for the recognition of foreign qualifications. The competent authority checks the residence requirements for the desired purpose of stay and issues a prior approval if all requirements are met. With this prior approval, the foreign skilled worker should receive an appointment to apply for a visa. Once all requirements are met, the responsible
