| Teaser | The foster care service can support foster parents if a child is to live permanently in the foster family because the conditions in the original family do not improve in the long term. |
| Volltext | If the living conditions in the original family of a foster child do not improve in the long term, the child can be placed in the foster family permanently. If the parents do not agree to this, the family court can order the child to remain in the foster family. This is a way to support the foster carers. The foster care service or the foster person(s) can also submit the application to remain in the foster family. |
| Erforderliche Unterlagen | Depending on the individual case, different documents are required. The child care service supports the carers in selecting the documents. |
| Voraussetzungen | A foster child has been living in a foster family for a long time. The child's parents or persons with custody of the child demand the return of the child. The physical, emotional or mental well-being of the child is endangered by being removed from the foster family. The foster carers want/need support from the foster care service. | place of residence is. The court must also take action ex officio, so that the youth welfare office can also submit a corresponding application. Until the proceedings are concluded, the court can issue an interim order requiring the foster child to remain with the foster family until the decision is made. Foster children aged 14 and over must always be heard by the court in proceedings concerning personal or financial custody. A child under 14 will be heard if his or her inclinations, ties or will are important for the decision or if it appears necessary to establish the facts. In any case, the court decision is based on the "best interests of the child" principle.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Once the foster carers have contacted them, the foster care service will begin to support them in the "child's stay with foster carers" process. The length of the process depends on the length of the legal proceedings before the family court.
